Arrival in Guilin

Air Transportation

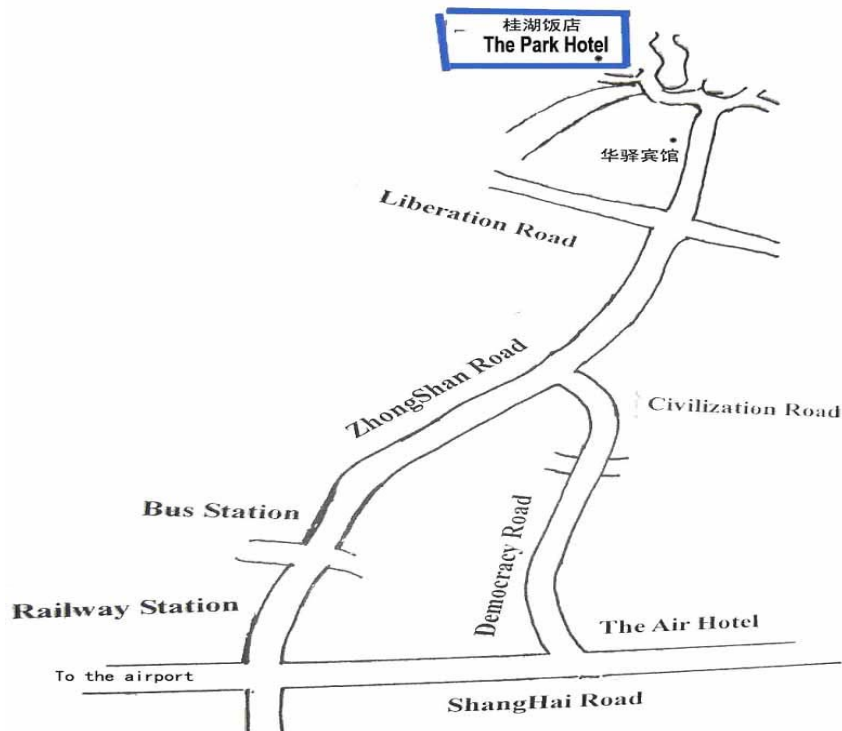

Guilin Liangjiang International Airport is located near Liangjiang town, 28 kilometres (17.36 miles) from Guilin. Direct flights are available between Guilin and Beijing, Guangzhou, Shanghai, Hong Kong and a number of regional cities. In addition to domestic air routes, there are two regional routes to Hong Kong and Macao and new international air routes to cities in Japan, Korea, Singapore, Thailand, Malaysia and other countries. There is an airport shuttle bus (6:30am-7:30pm, approx RMB20) that runs between the airport and the downtown area of Guilin. A taxi from downtown Guilin to the airport will cost around RMB80-100 (2004 rates). Further information regarding getting to Guilin is available.

Rail

The Xianggui railway passes through Guilin. The Guilin Railway Station has only recently been completed and is the largest in South China. The No.37/38 train from Guilin to Guangzhou is an express train especially for tourists. Further information regarding getting to Guilin is available.

Road

Guilin is served by an excellent network of highways, linking the city and surrounds with neighbouring provinces. The Guilin-Liuzhou-Beihai Expressway has entrances and exits to urban areas, Hunan Province and Liuzhou. Further information regarding getting to Guilin is available.

Address of Park Hotel: No.1, Luosi Hill, Guilin China (Tel:0773-2558899)

Method 1: This is the simplest method after clearing customs, walk directly outside the airport where there is an official taxi stand. Go to the stand, and show this note to the taxi driver. This will cost about 90RMB for taking a taxi from Guilin airport to the Park Hotel.

Please take me to the Park Hotel, thanks!
